A. Release Date: Friday, May 3, 2013

With the team-up in 2013, Phase 1 runs exactly 2009–2013 with 6 films, as Memo #004 set it. Phase 2 begins in 2014 as planned.

C. Full Film Sheet (Memo #008)

1. Title: The Motortown Revue

It's the real name of Motown's touring show and the team name chosen in Memo #006. The film and the team share a title, just like The Avengers. To the public, it's a period ensemble film about a famous tour, and it gives nothing away (Memo #007).

2. What's Being Adapted

Source	Used for
Primary: Firsthand accounts from tour members, including Mary Wilson, Dreamgirl (1986); Martha Reeves, Dancing in the Street (1994); and Smokey Robinson, Smokey: Inside My Life (1989)	Life on the bus, the Southern dates, and the Birmingham shooting
Berry Gordy, To Be Loved (1994)	Why the tour was launched and how it was run from Detroit
The Motortown Revue live recordings, the tour itinerary, and period press	The roster, the running order, the venues and the dates

3. What the Movie Is About

Logline: In late 1962, Motown puts every act it has on one bus and sends them into the Jim Crow South. Rivals become a family, a family becomes a team, and the team becomes the Sound of Young America.

Act One: Assemble (Detroit). Gordy's idea is to send the whole roster out together and win the country city by city. Esther and the management office put the tour together. Mary Wells is the headliner, and the Supremes are near the bottom of the bill. Marvin Gaye, the Miracles, the Marvelettes, Martha & the Vandellas and 12-year-old Little Stevie Wonder board the buses at Hitsville.

Act Two: The Road (the South). It's show after show, with competition for applause, rivalries and romances. Then comes the South: segregated hotels and restaurants, audiences divided by a rope down the middle, and in Birmingham, Alabama, gunfire at the tour bus. The team comes close to breaking apart.

Act Three: The Team (Harlem). They choose to keep going together. The tour ends at the Apollo Theater, where every act takes the stage for the finale, and they return to Detroit a family. Everyone plays at full strength (No-Nerf), from the headliner to the bottom of the bill.

4. Whose Movie / Franchise It Is

The team's: the Motortown Revue. This is the first TMU ensemble film. It's anchored by the Phase 1 leads who were really on the tour, Smokey Robinson and Marvin Gaye, with Berry Gordy launching and running it from Hitsville.

Why David Ruffin (Film 2) is not on the bus

In The Avengers, the Hulk is part of the team. But David Ruffin did not join the Temptations or Motown until January 1964, more than a year after this tour. Putting him on the 1962 bus would break the Fidelity Mandate, and fidelity overrides the blueprint. This isn't a nerf, because he keeps his full-strength solo film. His first team-up comes in Phase 2, once the timeline reaches his years at Motown.

5. Antagonist

Level	Antagonist	What the record supports
Primary	The Jim Crow South	Segregation law and custom: "whites only" facilities, rope-divided audiences, and the gunfire at the bus in Birmingham. It plays the role of the alien invasion. The film uses the system itself as the enemy and invents no single villain.
Internal	The team's rivalries	The competition for applause and top billing that the team has to get past, just as the Avengers argued among themselves on the Helicarrier.

6. Timeline: When & Where

	Setting
When	Late 1962, from the day the buses leave Hitsville to the final Apollo shows. Each date follows the documented itinerary.
Where	Detroit (Hitsville U.S.A.), the Northeast and the Jim Crow South (including Birmingham, Alabama), and the Apollo Theater in Harlem.
Master timeline	TMU Chapter Five. It starts the moment Smokey ends (the bus pulls out) and pays off the Revue poster from Hitsville 's end-credits scene.

7. Standalone World-Building

Life on the tour stands on its own: the buses, the dressing rooms, the theaters of the Black touring circuit, the chaperones, the young performers growing up on the road, and the South of 1962. A viewer who has seen no other TMU film can follow it as a complete historical ensemble drama (40% serialized / 60% standalone).

8. Motown Universe World-Building

Type	Established in The Motortown Revue
Payoffs	The Revue poster (Hitsville end-credits), the Birmingham rope (What's Going On end-credits), and the bus departure (Smokey end-credits). All three pay off here.
Team formed	The Motortown Revue becomes the TMU's team (Memo #006). The Phase 1 leads and the whole roster share the screen for the first time.
Returning	Every actor from Films 1–5 who plays a tour member returns in the same role, and the Hitsville sets come back.
Seeds	The Supremes at the bottom of the bill (their rise follows in Hitsville 2), Little Stevie Wonder, and Martha & the Vandellas. These are future stories, visible to all.

9. Post-Credits Scenes: Two

Scene	Setting	What happens
Mid-credits	Hitsville U.S.A., early 1963	Back in Detroit, the performers line up for their tour pay. Motown's management holds their earnings and hands out allowances, as tour members' memoirs describe. The camera stays on the ledger. This plants the long-running threat of the saga: money and control, the forces that will later split the Motown family. It's the TMU's version of the Thanos reveal.
End-credits	The road home, dawn	The bus rolls back into Detroit. The whole team is asleep, slumped on each other's shoulders, and no one says a word. It pulls up at 2648 West Grand Boulevard. It's the TMU's version of the shawarma scene: the team, quiet and together.

10. How It Kicks Everything Off

N/A. This field is for the first film only (Memo #008). As the end of Phase 1, it closes the first chapter and sets up Phase 2.
